PA Attorney General to Deliver Keynote at Safe Schools Seminar Education and Law Enforcement to Address Dangers and Resources

READING, PA – Children are vulnerable to technological dangers (cyber bullying, sexting) and negative social influences (gun violence, drugs, gangs). Members of the law enforcement and education communities will discuss those threats and the resources available to help schools, communities, and families deal with many of the dangers confronting children today at the Keeping Kids Safe seminar.

Pennsylvania Attorney General Tom Corbett will deliver the keynote address to an audience composed of K–12 school administrators, counselors, psychologists, etc., community leaders, elected officials, law enforcement officers, and school board members.

Keeping Kids Safe will be held October 22, 2009, from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the BCIU Education Centre, 2101 Centre Ave., Reading, PA.

Other sessions at the seminar will include:

Digital Dangers: Cyber Bullying, Sexting, and Social Networking (My Space, Facebook)

Kelly Kline, Assistant District Attorney, Berks County DA's Office
Donald Stewart, County Detective, Berks County DA's Office

Influences on our Youth: Hate Crimes and Gang Activity

Michelle Gwinn Nutter, Project Manager, Center for Safe Schools
Steve Powell, Lieutenant, City of Reading Police Department

Resources for Schools and Families

Dr. John George, Executive Director, Berks County Intermediate Unit
Michelle Gwinn Nutter, Project Manager, Center for Safe Schools

Registration deadline is Friday, October 16, 2009. R.S.V.P. to Nancy Hoban at 610-987-8404.
